

Dark Energy Gravitational Waves

E. A. Plum *et al.

(Received 29 February 2016; Published 1 April 2016)

Recent theoretical, observational and computational results establish the possibility that gravitational waves produced by the dark energy created at the dawn of the universe affect the clock rate of silicon digital processors operating at very low temperatures.